In the past, Troy State University has provided students with a progressive environment: suitable for social activities and suitable for both personal and physical improvement.

Troy State opened its doors and welcomed more than 5,000 students during 1994-95. An increasing number of TSU students managed personal challenges including jobs, families and spouses and academic challenges such as term papers, final exams and grade reports. The pace of college life never changes.

From the newly equipped recreation facilities to the new and improved intramural playing fields, unexpected change filled the air. The unexpected theme captured all of these unique moments at TSU.

Thomas Harrison, who graduated from TSU in 1966, served as dean of student development services at Wallace State Community College in Dothan. He has also taught on both high school and college level. In 1978, he was selected Outstanding Young Educator for Montgomery.

Since James Rowell's graduation in 1958, he has worked in all levels of the government. Presently, he is the assistant finance director for the state of Alabama. Rowell is also the past president of the Montgomery Metro Exchange Club.

The Troy State University Hill Crest House was dedicated Jan. 26, 1995. This addition to the campus offers a new and refreshing change to "dorm life." The Hill Crest House is a wellness residence hall. It is a 14-occupancy cottage that provides a substance-free environment for students. "Wellness involves taking a holistic approach to health by molding physical, mental and spiritual health into one philosophy," said Dr. Jack Hawkins Jr. "The emphasis goes beyond exhorting students to abstain from unhealthy behavior to a program that teaches students about alternatives and forms the values that lead to decisions for wellness."

Flashback

The 68th Miss America was 21-year-old Heather Whitestone of Birmingham, Ala. Miss Whitestone, who has been deaf since she was 18 months old, became the first hearing impaired contestant to win the title. After receiving the crown, she said "I love you" amidst thunderous applause from the audience at the Atlantic City Convention Center.

The torch was passed in the summer of 1994. After hearing about the legendary rock festival from their parents for years, a new generation seized the opportunity to create their Woodstock. From folk music to heavy metal, the weekend concert in Saugerties, N.Y. was filled with music 24 hours a day.

Andre Agassi was one of the best known participants in the 1994 U.S. Open, but a year of a largely indifferent attitude toward tennis left him unseeded and unheralded. So everyone was amazed when he won the tournament—including Agassi.

This was a year full of ups and downs, wins and losses but most importantly it was a year full of adventure.

The United States served as the host for the 1994 World Cup Soccer Competition. The U.S. team lost to Brazil in the second round and an estimated two billion people worldwide watched Brazil defeat Italy 3-2 in the finals.

Jon Secada came back from a disappointing 1992 debut album with a smash in 1994. "Heart, Soul & A Voice" became an instant hit.

Michael Jordan made the career move of the year when he signed a contract to play minor league baseball for the Chicago White Sox. By the time the season ended, it was clear that the 31-year-old rookie outfielder still had a long way to go before he'd be ready for the big leagues so he returned to the NBA.

The future is a new

The American Heritage Dictionary defines graduation as the "...receipt of an academic degree or diploma marking completion of studies," but graduation is much more. It is the day that students spend so much time and dedication striving for and the day parents dream about. It marks the end of an era but most important, it marks the beginning of a new, frightening and thrilling adventure. Commencement is merely the ceremony that recognizes those students who have gone the distance. The real test is the road that lies ahead.

Congratulations are well deserved for the class of 1995.

A French cowboy? A calypso dance in Egypt? A Pharaoh that looks like Elvis? What is this!

It is "Joseph and the Technicolor Dreamcoat," an entertaining spin off depicting the biblical account of Joseph.

Directed by Phil Kelly and with a cast of more than 50 actors, a technical crew in excess of 15 and the TSU symphony supplying the music, all five performances went off with relative ease. But don't let the smooth performances fool you. This show was as complicated as they come.

Long hours of rehearsal were extended when the choreography was introduced to the actors. Many scenes had long and complicated dance routines that looked great when they took center stage.

To make the show even more entertaining, many special effects were added. Strobe lights, fog machines and disco-style rotating lights added to the atmosphere of the production.

All the lighting effects plus keeping up with the 19 microphones used made the technical side of "Joseph and the Technicolor Dreamcoat" a full-time job. But as the crew found out, teamwork makes everyone's jobs go a lot smoother.

After the three shows in Troy, the crew packed everything up and traveled to the Davis Theater in Montgomery. There, two more performances were given to a packed house.

'Playboy of the Western World'

In keeping with his tradition of presenting quality dramas, Tom Smiley gave TSU "Playboy of the Western World," a love story set in a public house in old Ireland.

In the early part of the Fall quarter, the drama students began developing their versions of the characters they would portray. As the actors and actresses worked on accents and attitudes, their characters began coming to life. On stage, their performances showed just how much work they put in to their parts.

The crew designed and built a great set for the actors to work on. Making a stage floor become the interior of a home proved a challenge. Rafters needed hanging and steps were built. But the final set was worth the effort. With the set in place, the lighting could be set and focused.

Unlike other shows, the technical crew had it easy this time. Minimal but effective lighting was used to enhance the atmosphere. The musical tracks were added in the background for ambiance.

Four performances were given to a packed house in the Adams Center Theater.

Singing in choirs and performing in plays helped her prepare for the Miss TSU challenge. Tinker also won the talent competition with her rendition of "On My Own" from the Broadway Musical "Le Miserables."

In the future, she hopes to travel to elementary schools to warn children about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse. This was the topic of her platform in the pageant. Tinker will travel to Birmingham, Ala., to represent TSU in the Miss Alabama pageant in July.

The Will Rogers Follies

Yes, the life of a legend is a hard thing to relive. The cast and crew of Troy State University's Musical Theater department made it look easy though. "Will Rogers Follies" was a historical overview of the life of Will Rogers. The play also portrayed his humble and humanitarian side. Art Williams took on the roll of becoming Will Rogers and mastered the character thoroughly. Learning rope tricks, a new walk, smacking on gum constantly and overcoming a mild fear of heights, Art brought to life a historical legend.

Art was not the only star in the show. Sharon Sossaman played the roll of Will Rogers devoted wife. Supportive and loving, she merged into the part as if she really was Mrs. Rogers.

"Pit Stop" is a play that allows viewers to relate to the characters problems and situations. Set in a privately owned fabric store, the characters react to each day's unique but seemingly ordinary events.

This play is the Capstone Project for Troy State University Theater major Kimberly Cockcroft. She produced, wrote and directed the play to meet graduation requirements.

The TSU Theater department helped present this play by supplying some of the needed props and set construction.

"Pit Stop" represented some actual and some altered versions of life in a fabric store in a small town. Insightful and descriptive, the play was arranged in a way that allowed for the characters to develop into real people as the play progressed.

"Pit Stop" showed that no matter where you live, there are always problems and most importantly solutions. A little understanding and a lot of love can make relationships go far.

I shall not fear,
I shall not despair.
Although it may appear
I am going no where.

Sometimes, deception is hidden within a smile.

A good maid is just what every family needs.

"Good God, People don't do such things." This is the last line in the play that describes lost love, ignorant relationships, envious peers, humiliation, deception and corruption.

The TSU Drama Department presented Hedda Gabler during Winter quarter. Lori Hancock made her debut as Director of Hedda Gabler.

The play is set in the early 1880s and describes the torments of a woman trying to obtain the respect of the community she and her husband live in.

Hedda Gabler (Balinda Kusz), the main character in this play, is no conventional heroine. She behaves atro-ciously with everyone she meets. Her moral sense is thoroughly defective. She is perverse, egotistical, sadistic, callous, even evil and demonic, truly a femme fatale.

While this impression is not in error, it fails to recognize the other side of her personality and situation.

The role of Hedda was very challenging, but Balinda grabbed it with both hands. The role required not only strict mental preparation but also a commitment to become immersed in the character.

George Tesman (Blair Andress) is the ignorant husband who is too wrapped up in his research to recognize the problems in his marriage. Unaware that Hedda is even pregnant with his child, Tesman proves to be not much of a man.

The entire cast and crew of Hedda Gabler put forth a great effort to bring this play to life. By the end of the last show, it was obvious that the long hours of preparation, set work and costuming paid off.

Three cast members received nominations for the Irene Ryan Award for outstanding performance;

"Ya want to sit on the couch and.....talk."

A little gospel makes everyone happy.

The "Piano Lesson" is a fine example of a modern playwright's excellence in understanding the human psyche, particularly black culture and heritage.

The play, although simple at a glance, reflects a much deeper angle. The piano acts as a central focus for the plot. A highly symbolic image, it represents the past as a heritage for black culture and also points to the future as a way to escape the horrors of the past. The future depends on the past in the way that the past is a blueprint for the future. The play is a cry for the full realization of black culture. Because of the atrocities done to blacks in the past, they are lacking a legacy on which to base their lives. The play uses the piano as a symbol that stands at these crossroads - the past and the future.

The piano is a symbol of the past as well as a beacon pointing toward a new and better future.

"Oh no! You ain't gonna take this piano anywhere."

A Look Behind the Scenes

'Chill out babe!'

'I am woman. Hear me roar.'

'Wow, what pretty lights. Oh yeah, I have to sing here.'

'Thank god this show is over.'

'Nah!! Directors don't have any nervous habits.'

'Will...I'm still waiting.'

'What was my next line?'

'I'll kill you if you....YOU BETTER RUN.'

A play has many elements. Script, actors, technical people, directors, producers, writers and so on. Anyone who has ever been a part of a play knows that sometimes there is a particular moment that cannot go un-noticed. Sometimes a look on an actors face or lack of tells a story in itself. In a production there are also times when you can tell just what someone is thinking; or at least make-up something good they might be thinking.

How many pictures can one person take!

I knew I could spin a rope.

Behind the scenes continues with a few more pictures of pre-performance action. The stage allows for many things; personal recognition, personal creativity, satisfaction and a lot of fun.

'Ya see, you gotta have the right angle to shoot some one right.'

All organizations contribute greatly to the quality of education offered by TSU. Organizations not only serve the student body, but also the faculty and community of Troy. The varied groups possess different goals. However, they each encourage students through their activities, beliefs and service projects.

Sororities and fraternities play a large role on Troy State's campus by encouraging leadership, academic excellence and community service. Greeks get involved in different activities from intramurals to philanthropies. Wearing letters or participating in social gatherings is not what being Greek is all about. It's about a friendship that lasts forever. Being involved in Greek life provides opportunities and enrichment.

Perhaps the most important aspect of the Chi Omega Fraternity is the strong bond of friendship and sisterhood they share.

Phi Mu's bond of sisterhood can't be explained, it must be experienced. "When she smiles, she brings courage and hope to your heart. "Let us strive for that which is honorable, beautiful and highest" remains the motto by which Kappa Deltas live today. In Virginia in 1897, four women founded Kappa Delta. They started a spark that is still burning strongly today. Whatever your dreams, Kappa Delta allows you to follow them and to create new ones. Kappa Delta stands for sisterhood. It is this bond that separates Kappa Delta from other sororities.

Sports, often the most visible area of the school to the community, were largely responsible for drawing attention to Troy State.

T-Day '95...

Troy State University celebrated T-Day 1995 with many exciting events including the dedication of the newly renovated Jesse Colley track. Trojan fans of all ages watched the annual football game while also enjoying two baseball games and an exhibition relay by current and former track athletes from Troy State.

The Cardinal team emerged the victor, while its defense, led by Gerald DeBardeladon held the White offense to only 5 rushing yards. # Turning Two...

Along with the football festivities and the track dedication, T-Day 1995 featured our Trojan baseball team in a double header against New York Tech. The Trojans defeated New York in both games while providing the crowd with an example of their excellent skills. Everyone enjoyed the beautiful weather and the good sportsmanship the Trojans showed us in the 1995 T-Day games.

HIGH INTENSITY FOOTBALL

The Trojans played high intensity football and were always ready to rise to the occasion. The offense played with a special attitude that had the capability of putting points on the board quickly. The offense looked for the opposition's defense to make a mistake so it could make opponents pay for it. The TSU defense played with the same intensity to stop the opponent. The defense looked for ways to pin the opponent deep or cause a turnover to get the offense back into the game.

Back to the Playoffs

For the second year in a row, Troy made an appearance in the I-AA post-season play. The 1994 season was the second season Troy State was eligible for division I-AA play. The Trojans traveled to Harrisonburg, Va., to take on James Madison in the first round of the playoffs. Although the season did not end in a championship, the overall record of 8-4 proved the season's success.

TROJANS WORK HARD

The Trojans played as a team. Everyone had a job and did it. The offensive line did a great job of protecting quarterback Jeremy Rowell and creating holes for quick backs. In return, Rowell had the time to read defenses and to pick them apart. The running backs found the holes and picked up the yards needed. Lead by Robert Kilow, the receivers did a great job getting open, catching the ball and blocking down field.

The defensive line was used to get into the backfield and to cause problems. The linebackers used their size and strength to cause havoc. The secondary gave the linebackers and the line time to get to the quarterback and make him pay for his mistakes.

Leaders of the Pack

The 1994 Trojan team was lead by some very outstanding seniors. These seniors showed leadership on and off the field throughout the season. The seniors were Cedrick Brooks, Jerome Calvert, Breck Carroll, Madison Coker, Steven Coleman, Jason Crook, Troy Eliason, Eric James, Sherman James, Robert Kilow, Illya Lawrence, Randolph Lovejoy, Dale Payne and Phil Puccio.

Wide reciever Phil Puccio awaits his turn to take the field.

Defensive player Stacey Murry works hard to make the tackle.

Trojans See Changes

Rodney Jackson, guard, drives to the goal.

Many changes took place on the Trojan court this year. One of the major changes was the reconstruction of the team. With only one returning starter, the squad was youthful and largely inexperienced. There were only four returning players from the 1993-94 season.

Another major change was that TSU played in a new conference, the Mid-Continent Conference, which merged with five members of the East Coast Conference last spring.

"The Mid-Con slate is a lot tougher than our schedule last year," said Coach Don Maestri, "This is the toughest schedule we've had since I've been here."

Two Players are Honored

Lady Trojans Take A Step Up

The Lady Trojans took a step up during the 1994-95 season. The move to Division I caused the team to do an overhaul of its entire program. With strong leadership from Lashunya Johnson, the only returning starter, the Lady Trojans worked hard on becoming more competitive in Division I and finished 13-14.

Lady Trojans Show Team Spirit

The 1994-95 Lady Trojans excelled throughout the season, continued to work hard and improved. Each team member showed great improvement by the end of the season, making next year look promising. Although the season ended with a 13-14 record, the Lady Trojans showed great team spirit as they worked to improve their game.

All in a Day's Work

Behind every successful person, there is someone who is there to help whenever needed. At Troy State, there are two groups of people who work hard to ensure every sporting event goes off without problems. The Sports Information office is a place where anyone can find out about the various teams at Troy State. The sports trainers work hard at every game to keep the players fit.

On every Thursday, before a home game, the cheerleaders provided entertainment and fun during pep rallies. Troy State brought a young but experienced team into its first season as members of the Mid-Continent Conference. The Lady Trojans were 17-20 last year. Second year coach, Melanie Davis, said the returning players were stronger physically than a year ago. Senior captain, Jamie Wiggins, who had 42 solo blocks last year, led the team in 1994. Several newcomers, such as Teresa Stokes and Nicole Stierlin, contributed a great deal at their positions. The Lady Trojans hosted the Mid-Continent Division Tournament.

TSU Wins Awards

The Troy State baseball team walked away from the Mid-Continent Conference Championship Tournament with a first place trophy and several players with awards. Alex Rosa was awarded with the tournament MVP due partly to his seven for 12 effort at the plate. Reggie Hightower, Arnold Settles and Jason Fawcett were also named to the MCC Tournament team.

Leading the Team

The 1994-95 Trojan baseball team was equipped with several key players who provided great leadership throughout the season. The only two returning starters, Steve Duncan and Jeff Javinett, stepped forward and for the young team. Steve Duncan, who played first base, led the team in batting throughout the season. He batted .380 and had eight home runs. Jeff Javinett, a four year starting shortstop, was ranked fifth in the nation for doubles and broke the Troy State record with nineteen doubles this season.

TSU has experienced many changes since its humble beginnings in 1887 as a teachers' college.

Today, the Troy campus is home to a worldwide educational system with three Alabama campuses and more than 40 sites on military bases in 10 states and six foreign countries. The founders of Troy State Normal School, the university's original name, couldn't have envisioned TSU's state and global impact.

Several points in TSU's history have been pivotal in its growth to a university system. One of the most significant periods followed World War II. Americans in the service returned to resume their lives. So many male students enrolled in the university following the war that barracks-style accommodations were made for them in the Wright Hall gym. In 1947, as part of a post-war building campaign, Pace Hall was completed as TSU's first men's dormitory. In all, four campus buildings and a large enrollment increase resulted between 1945 and 1955.

An equally important period of growth has occurred since 1989. System enrollment has increased by more than 30 percent and changes have broadened the university's role in the state. One factor that is significant to the state's economy is that TSU has an estimated $194 million annual economic impact in Southeast Alabama. By the year 2000, TSU will have an even stronger impact on the state's economy as it continues to build alliances with other universities, community colleges, technical institutions, agencies and businesses.

By the turn of the century, enrollment will surpass 6,000 on the main campus with an estimated 5 percent or more of the student body coming from foreign countries. TSU will continue to be a leader in providing progressive educational programs by developing new majors and programs which combine information technologies into options such as environmental analysis and management. Degree programs are being molded now to encourage graduates to become lifelong learners. Whereas TSU's reputation for instructional excellence is rooted in more than 100 years of tradition as a teachers college, the future holds many new educational directions and approaches such as distance learning and expanded student services.

Other factors make prospects for our future bright. Our move to NCAA Division I and I-AA continues to be successful in terms of competitiveness, and it is focusing more attention on a tradition-rich athletic program. Likewise, academics are flourishing at TSU through the advent of programs which meet the needs of a changing society. Programs already established, such as education and nursing, continue to produce quality graduates. Also, almost 80 percent of Alabama's public schools employ TSU System-trained teachers, and more than 60 percent of the nurses in the Montgomery area are TSU alumni. On a broader scale, accounting graduates are scattered across the Southeast in the nation's largest accounting firms, and journalism graduates can be seen on national news programs and on your local evening news.

At TSU, we have defined a mission for the future. Throughout this mission our orientation will remain on students, and we will stay dedicated to providing an accessible, quality education. We hope the connection you have with TSU as a student will continue long after your graduation, and that you will be active, loyal alumni.

Here's the story...

Nine months ago, two eager young women set off on the mission of producing a different and unexpected yearbook. Without much support for the idea of co-editors, we believed in ourselves and in our abilities. We looked at this task as an adventure instead of a job and knew that the unexpected was about to happen to us. This is how the theme "Expect the Unexpected" was born. Our first encounter was a staff of new faces. They were new to us and to the university and had no idea about Palladium publication. We had a staff and a theme and our work was cut out for us.

We set up all of our specs, section editors, staff meetings and deadlines. We thought we had everything under control until one of our staff members went into labor during our first staff meeting. We looked at each other and told each other that we could handle this. Everything was once again organized, and we were ready to work. After one week into the quarter, our ladder was lost. We turned the office upside down and finally gave up. We created our own wall-sized ladder. We made our first deadline with extra pages and looked forward to winter quarter. Winter came and once again we had a staff of new faces. Honestly, we had not expected this. Was it us or maybe our huge wall ladder that intimidated people. We started training again. We had to turn entire sections over to inexperienced freshmen, and we tried to tell them how to do things and what to expect when we had no earthly idea ourselves. We relied on Subway to reduce our stress level and Pringles if the maid did not eat them all. Deadlines started coming and going, and we were amazed at the excuses we heard from staff members. We had no idea they were so creative. We finally convinced Lesa that Sports Information had all the facts she was searching for. We convinced Latoya that only organization advisers could identify people in photos because we did not know everyone on campus. We developed into two completely frustrated, stressed, overworked individuals. We practically moved into the office but kept our patience.

During this time, Penny was in training to take on the entire workload when Diana left for internship in the spring. Diana appointed Jerome the responsibility of taking care of Penny's sanity. We made all of our deadlines and said our good-byes knowing that Diana would come back.

Afternoons were spent by Penny dwelling on the absence of Diana. Walking into the office the first day was terrible. I missed her so much and I realized I had to do this if not for me but for her. Once again, I became organized. The only problem was that spring was here and staff members did not want to come in. I found myself pleading for information on the status of their sections. Jerome was always there for me, telling me that I could do this when I didn't believe in myself. Diana called every week and Jerome always wiped the tears away when I hung up the phone with her. I handled deadlines, proofs and staff meetings, but I had no idea of the fight ahead. Palladium was being cut completely out of the 1995-96 budget. I then focused my attention on fighting for a book instead of deadlines. Staff members were outraged, publications were calling me for quotes and students were asking questions. The book survived, and I could then focus my time on deadlines. The staff almost gave up during this fight and seemed to lose respect for me. Diana came back and found me about to give up. After an afternoon in the office screaming so that the entire second floor could hear, Diana confronted the problem and handled it. I could then see just how special our friendship had become.

Penny got over her nervous breakdown and was selected for editor again. The bad news was that we had another deadline and the good news was that one of our staff members was expecting another baby. Mr. McKerral always wondered what were doing up here. We just looked at Palladium as one big, happy family. We spent finals week trying to figure out how to do the index, and we hope you liked it. The best thing that came out of the publication of this book was the fact that we did it despite the negative feelings people first had and we developed a friendship that will last a lifetime.

Special Thanks

Jerome-Pontiacs are good cars. You just got lucky with your Honda. I like whip cream on my desserts also. Thanks for all of your help.

Tonya-The quiet one. Have you talked to Tony Harris lately? Can we do lunch? We will miss you dearly.

Meri-Have you signed your time card yet? Good luck with your family.

Leslie-Be harsh in sending those bills next year. Collect money so you can get paid. Good luck!

Lesa-You made it through your interview. We told you that you could do it. Good luck next year.

Latoya-Photography called and said they do not have the archaeological picture. You did a great job with organizations.

Jeanine-Honestly, nothing happened on the yellow couch. You will be a great editor next year! We leave you sleepless nights, no respect and phone calls from Ed.

Mac-Thanks for always believing in us and giving us the encouragement to continue. We could never figure out what you were doing from sprained ankles to throwing out your back to rumors about heart attacks. You will never know what a difference you made in our lives. Thanks for being our adviser and friend.

How we Did It

The Palladium was published by Delmar printing and Publishing in Charlotte, N.C.. The representative was Frank Myers.

The theme was created by Penny Rogers, Diana Schauer and Phillip Burk. The cover was designed by Diana Schauer and Penny Rogers. The cover contained a silver foil stamp and a maroon silkscreen. The cover was black.

There were 2,000 copies of the book printed. The books are given free to students that attend fall, winter and spring quarter. If a student missed a quarter, the cost was $5 for each quarter missed.

The paper is 80 pound. The book contains 320 pages.

Spot color used is PMS 199 and PMS 215.

All copy and graphics were type set by students on the Macintosh computer using the Pagemaker 4.2 program. Body copy and captions are Times 12 point and 11 point. Folios are 18 point (Page number) and 12 point (Section). The fonts varied for each section: Greeks, Symbols and Zapf Chancery; Organizations, Bookman (Italic); Student Life, Helvetica and Chancery; Sports, New Century Schoolbook; and Features; Times.
